Warships Rush To Help

Park, July 4. The Foreign Office officially confirms that the Insurgent cruiser, Almirante Cervera, stopped the French merchantman, Tregastel, off Santander this morning.

Insurgent vessels are reported to be escorting the Tregastel to Bilbao. Two French warships, the Chasseur and Vanquois, have been rushed to the aid of the Tregastel.

The Tregastel was fired on by the Almirante Cervera at 10 o'clock, and on the fourth shot was hove to. The merchantman was then taken is charge by another Insurgent sliip, the Cludad de Valencia, with which ly. she proceeded eastward.—Renter.

HEAVIEST RAINFALL FOR YEAR

Over Seven Inches In 24 Hours

Low-Lying Areas Flooded

The typhoon which entered the coast near Breaker Point yesterday brought the biggest fall of rain to the Colony experienced this year. For the 24 hours ended at 9.30 alm. to-day the Royal Observatory recorded no fewer 7.02 inches.

The heaviest fall occurred between 2.30 and 4.30 p.m., yesterday, when 3.56 inches were registered. In the first of these two hours, 1.91 inches were recorded, and, in the second, 1.65 Inches.

For the first time this year, the rainfall registered since January 1 totals an amount equal to the average for the period, '

Many of the low-lying parts of the Colony were flooded, and much damage was done to rice crops in the New Territories, both by the floods and gales.

FEW LANDSLIDES

A number of small landslides have been reported both on the island and the mainland, but enquiries made this morning show that none of these was serious.

Native craft had ample warning of the typhoon and were thus able to make for shelter in good time. The only incident reported was one in which five men got adrift on two rafts of timber from Tokowan and were carried out towards Lycemun. All were eventually brought to safety by the rescue-tug Kausing, which was on the look-out all day for craft in distress.

2 医五豆豆 Fails To Return After Saturday Cruise Alone

Some apprehension is felt for the safety of Mr. Donald William Wagstaff, yachtsman and manager of the W."W. Wagstaff and Sons Hongkong branch, since he has failed to return from a weekend sailing cruise.

Mr. Wagstaff, known as one of the most competent yachtsmen ir Hongkong, left early Saturday in his boat, Y-4, without his boat boy, according to his office staff. Reports reaching the police to-day stated that Y-4 had been seen anchored safely in Silver Strand Bay Saturday night, and it is thought likely that 'Mr. Wagstaff has either remained there or sought some other shelter.

The police have broadcast to their patrols and the station at Sai Kung, at the top of Port Shelter, has been notified to carry out a search.

Mrs. Wagstaff and their two children are in Hongkong, and Mr. Wagståff's parents are in Shanghai.

Los Angeles, July 4. The Coast Guard cutter Itasca, cruising to-day in the region of Howland Island, has hitherto failed to find any trace of the missing plane which Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam and three companions were flying around the world.

Meanwhile, the United States Navy is mobilising for the search speedily. The battleship Colorado has left Honolulu for Howland Island, where she is expected Tuesday. She left Honolulu yesterday and should be at lonely Howand Island Tuesday evening. She carries three catapult planes, one of which has been reconnoitring ahead of the battleship. Owing to storms this plane was forced to turn back to Honolulu,

The bireraft carrier Lexington, with 54 places aboard, left San Diego last night for Howland Island,

Washing Tips

TRILLS and delicate laces are popular this season, but many dainty fabots and lace collars lose their charm, unless they are washed with the utmost care.

A good plan for prolonging the life of lace collars and cuffs, for example, is to place them in a glass jar containing lukewarm soap suds and shake the jar instead of gently squeezing the articles which is the usual procedure when washing clothes.

The secret of making any clothes wear well is to rinse them thoroughly every time they are washed. In the case of shirt or blouse cuffs which collect dust from desks or tables, it is always wiser to press the suds through from the clean side to the dirty rather than heap soap suds on to the dirty side and rub furiously in the hope that the dirt will vanish. This only rubs it in all the Charlotte it is better to do this more. Careful rinsing after

SUNSPOT CYCLE SPEED-UP

Nine-Year Period Instead of Eleven/

AIR ALMANAC FOR MINISTRY

The sun is likely to reach the most active stage of the 11-years sunspot cycle in the autumn.

This was stated at the annual visitation of Greenwich Observatory on Saturday. It means that shortwave wireless reception will then be at its best, so that the B.B.C.'s new Empire transmitters will be coming into full operation under the most favourable conditions,

It is also believed that there are more thunderstorms over the world than at any other stage in the sun's cycle. The level of Lake Victoria Nyanza will also be expected to be nt its highest. This, too, follows the sunspot cycle, presumably because the rainfall of tropical Africa is affected. If the astronomers' expectations are fulfilled, this will have been one of the shortest cycles on record. The last year of sunspot maximum was 1928, giving an interval of only nine years instead of 11. However, since the sun is always erratic, individual cycles occupying anything between nine and 13 years, it cannot be par-ticularly blamed on the present occasion. The average is 11.4 years. Sunspots are great vortices on the sun's disc, often large enough to swallow up the earth 'many times over. Two of the largest spots seen this year each covered more than 2,000 million square miles.

SPOTS BELOW STANDARD At the present time, there is one group of five spots on the west side of the sun, and on the east side a smaller group of three spots, and also a solitary spot. None of these is, however, up to the best standard that the sun can produce.

This is the first year that the Astronomer Royal's report has covered the work of the Nautical Almanae, as well as that of the Royal Observatory. A departure has been the begin, ing of a special air almanac for the Air Ministry to meet the special needs of navigation of long distance flights.

All the necessary astronomical figures for two days are given on a being made up in loose-leaf form. In addition, further volumes of tables are being prepared which will reduce the necessary calculations to a reasonable minimum for air use.

SIR THOMAS RAFFLES-EMPIRE BUILDER

CAREER BROUGHT TO IGNOBLE END

As an Empire builder Sir Thomas Raffles is not as well known as Cook and Hastings, but he is worthy to rank with the highest. He was one of England's greatest sons.

Raffles was born at sea on July 5, 1781, and his formal education finished before he was fourteen, but he was a student throughout his life of forty-five years, during which time he achieved an immense amount of work. He is said to have had the extraordinary gift of being able to dictate simultaneously to two secretaries on different subjects while at the same time writing a letter on a third subject.

At the age of fourteen he entered the service of the East India Company in London, and even when he was nineteen he occupied the position of a very junior clerk. He was one of a large staff sent out to Penang in 1805. On the voyage he utilised his time learning the local tongue, and this asset, coupled with an extraordinary insight into the Malayan mind, gave him a very marked advantage over all the others who were associated with him in subordinate capacities.

FIRST BIG TRIUMPH

"He was appointed Assistant Secretary of the East India Company's newly-established station. Somesiduous was his devotion to duty that his health broke down and he was sent to Malacea to recuperate. The East India Company had decided to abandon Malacca, but Raffles, with his knowledge of the language and his friendship with natives of all kinds, formed the conviction that the policy of his employers was a mistaken one. He compiled a report which was sent to London and was also submitted to Lord Minto, the Governor-General of India Lord Minto was so impressed by the report that he at once ordered the East India Company to discontinue the abandonment of Malacca. This was a triumph for the young clerk, but it naturally brought with it many disadvantages, not the least of which was the life-long hostility of his superiors. He was, however, popular hero in England, and was knighted for his services. He was appointed Governor of Sumatra, and by the exercise of the most brilliant foresight, he was able to secure Singapore for the British Empire. and to outwit the Dutch, who had formed the idea of eliminating the British from that part of the world.

It is no exaggeration to say that had it not been for the foresight and persistence of Raffles, the whole of the Eastern British Empire would have been endangered. He is credited also with the design taking Java from the French August, 1811, thus shattering Napoleon's dream of French domination

in Asia. INNOCENT BUT RUINED

In 1814 Raffics' star seemed to decline almost as rapidly as it had risen. He was charged with corrupt practices before the Supreme Court at Calcutta. He emerged innocent, but greatly impoverished from the charge. The next blow was the returning of Java to the Dutch in the same year, and the death of his wife and several of his children.

It is interesting to recall the fact that, in addition to his services to the Empire, Rames was a founder and the first President of the London Zoological Society.

Not A Bye In 620 Runs

Leicestershire's 620 runs. against Warwickshire at Birmingham did not include one extra. Buckingham, the wicketkeeper, saw to that:

He kept wicket brilliantly, especially, when he caught two and stumped two batsmen. In the Leicester first innings he caught Riley.

Buckingham also bats well, and against Gloucestershire scored 109-his first century in big cricket. He has plenty of strokes, and is not afraid to attack the bowling.

FEW NOTES ABOUT BRYANGRANI

Realising His Ambitions

By Jack Cuddy United Press Staff Correspondent

New York. Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, the diminutive Atlantan who triumphed over persistent disappointments and his own fiery temper, is in England as the No. 2 singles player of the U.S. Davis Cup team.

A lot of young Americans have sailed for Europe during the past decade in futile quest of this Holy Grail of tennis, but it is doubtful if any one ever appreciated the opportunity more than this sawed-off Georgian. He has tried so long to be a full-fledged Davis cupper, and this voyage may give him the chance to prove to our tennis officials what they have been missing all these years in snubbing him.

/ At 26, Bitsy has achieved one of his three life-time ambitions—ic win a regular berth on the cup team. The other two ambitions are; (1) to win the Wimbledon singles champlonship, and (2) to win the U.S. singles title.

HE TRIED AGAIN

The small southerner figured he deserved a place on the team in 1935 after wading through. Ellsworth Vines, Sidney Wood and John Van Ryn. But the Cup Committee passed him up. Though somewhat disheartened, he tried again last year. He was picked on the team for the matches against Mexico, but before the American Zone final with Australia he was dropped in favour of Wilm'r Allison. Allison lost both his singles matches to the Aussies. Then Bitsy did the sporting thing. He told reporters, "Goshi, I.don't think I could have done any better."

This year Bitsy went after that cup job in dead earnest. He whipped himself into peak form. And all the tennis writers claim he is playing, better than ever before. He was brilliant in beating both Jack, Crawford and John Bromwich of Australia in the recent North American final, He beat both in straight sets, while our No. 1 singles player, Donald Budge, required four to dispose of Bromwich.

Although Grant is only 26, he is the oldest man on the U.S. squad which placed a definite accent on youth. He was born on Christmas Day, 1910. He has been a big-time tennis performer ever since he was kid in knee pants. At 10, he captured the Southern champlonship, and for years he proved invincible on clay. He scrambles about the court like a squirrel-specializing in speed afoot and retrieving. He goes after seemingly impossible returns and often bumbles about the court when he misses them.

LIKES SOFT-BALL GAME

He prefers the soft-ball game instead of trying to knock the cover off the pellet.

"I find that you usually can win the point if you get the ball back more often than the other fellow," he explains. So he keeps getting the ball back-to the despair of opponents.

Blisy's temper has been a far greater handleap to his progress than his size. Too often he hurled his racquet. ncross the court in a fit of anger and fired the air with lurid language. However, studying the game under Mercer Bensley taught him to control his temper as well as giving him many valuable pointers in technique.

Although he packs only 130 pounds on a 5 foot 4 inch frame, he has amazing stamina. His ability to set and hold a withering pace is one of his greatest assets.

JOAN INGRAM, MARGOI LUMB Miss Round Absent "KAY" AS NO. 1

Two newcomers to Wightman Cup tennis are included in this year's British team to oppose the Americans at Forest Hills on August 20 and 21 according to an announcement made last Saturday.

Miss Joan Ingram, who performed so well in the women's doubles at Wimbledon and Miss Margot Lumb, British squash rackets champion, and the most improved English woman tennis player of the year, are the two to receive Wightman cup honours for the first time.

Britain's chances of winning the cup are reduced by Miss Round's inability to make the trip. Miss Kay Stammer's therefore becomes Britain's No. 1 singles player. Though Miss Stammers has a fine Wightman Cup record including speciacular victories over Miss Helen Jacobs, she has shown inconsistent form in the competition and has invariably lost her second singles match, thereby nullifying previous triumphs.

Miss Mary Hardwicke or Miss Margot Lumb , will probably play second string singles. Miss Evelyn Dearman, Miss Freda James, and Miss Joan Ingram will almost certainly figure in the doubles matches and it is likely that Miss Stammers will partner Miss James.

Prominent names missing from this year's Wightman Cup selections are Miss Nancy Lyle, a brilliant doubles player, Miss M. C. Scriven and Miss

ENGLAND'S TWELVE FIELDSMEN

EIGHT AMATEURS IN THE LIST

Counties Lack Vitality

In county cricket to-day the art of fielding seems to be practised with a certain lack of vitality. It is competent, but competence is not enough. Some of our more promising batsmen appear to think that batting is sufficient so long as they make no glaring errors in the field. But no crocketer is complete unless his fielding is eager and dynamic.

This is not the fault of county captains, who on the whole set a very good example. If we make a list of the dozen best fielders in England, we can scarcely fail to include several of these captains themselves. Here is a sample list:

Mitchell (Yorkshire), H. G. Owen-Smith, J. Stephenson, M. J. Turnbull, A. B. Sellers, R. E. S. Wyatt, Paynter, Nichols, G. F. H. Henne, Hammond, and J. H. Human. ...This_list_may have some glaring omission, but I think that it is fairly representative. Two-thirds of the number are amateurs, including five county captains. '

A MODEL

What is the reason for the comparative decline in modern county fielding? Is it because too much cricket has dulied engerness and concentration? Or because players are avoiding injury and its consequent financial loss? Or is it in some cases mere laziness or unawareness of the vital importance of Turnberry, June 14. Miss Jessie Anderson, 22, of Perth, holder of the French Open Championship, won the British women's title on the Arran Course here to-day. In the 36-hole final she beat Miss Doris Park, 33, of Gullane, East Lothian, the Scottish Champion, by the decisive margin of 6 and 4.

KINC'S BLDG. (Service Dept.) O see our European selves as American others see us is these days no doubt good for our souls if bad for our vanity.

By Webb Miller

(Gollancz, 121. 6d.) .

Webb Miller, latest of American newspaper men to give us his impressions, came over first in 1917 to "war-time" London, grim, dreary and depressing. He has been "this side" on and off over since—shy, shrewd, quietly observant, humorously commenting.

Because Webb is Webb, his story is not, "like some I could mention." a boost of Mr. Miller the correspondent. It is just a quiet record of a busy journalist's life among the world happenings of twenty years.

Those twenty years took him from the Western Front to Ireland in the "trouble," to the Riff, to India in the days of lathi-charges, to a dozen Conferences, to the Italian front in Abyssinia, last to Spain. They put him in contact with most of the "great men" of

-- our day. At times he found humour: but he found no peace. That it is on the whole a depressing tale is no fault of the writer. It is the fault of the mismanagers of affairs.

There was a little exhausted mongrel dog near shell-tortured Verdun-" the only incident during the war that brought tears to my eyes." " Perhaps this tired, bewildered little dog symbolised to me all these men. He didn't knew what it was all about, where he was going or what would happen to him either." That is pretty true of all Europe

ever since. It is well these days to be reminded of many things the elders try to forget and the younger do not remember. Of those hills round Verdun for example, where nearly a million French and German bodies lie - most of them never identified, thousands of them never even found.

But there are lighter stories, too. Lloyd George, for example, explaining his fitness under intolerable atrain. Sleeping at will-and singing Welsh hymns.

"Whenever I found that I was becoming troubled by my responsibilities I ceased work and sang hymns for a few minutes. Sometimes I've kept important callers or delegations waiting

while I sang." Out of it all Webb Miller has come with the double conviction that should come to all of us who mix in. " world affairs" and try to record them: that, try as honestly as one may, it is desperately hard to tell the truth; that the more one knows, the less one knows one knows.

"I have learned that the only way to retain a firm clear-cut opinion about anything is to know little or nothing about It."

When a man talks like that you can be sure that his opinions are worth

And anyway, in the case of Webb Miller, you can take it from me that his book is much more than merely worth reading.

> THE ROAD TO WIGAN PIER

By George Orwell (Gollancz, 10s. 6d.)

HIS is obviously intended to be a bold and a challenging book. It succeeds until the anti-climaxes begin two-thirds of the way through. Then you wonder what has happened to the boldness and the challenge-and you never really find out. Mr. Orwell has quite properly been halled as a " realistic " writer. He can make you shudder about the disgusting conditions of a lodging-house over a tripe-shop and make you rebellious about the dreadful conditions in which many miners toll. He can work you up into a state of great indignation about the folly of class consciousness, to which he devotes many pages. About that he can get, you quite hot under the collar-and does. Until you get to page 203, which is the last but one. And then he says:

"As for the testibly difficult issue of class-distinctions, the only possible policy for the moment in to go easy and not frighten more people than can be

DEATH WITHOUT BATTLE

By Ludwig Renn

(Martin Secker and Warburg, 68.)

OME years ago Herr Renn's pacifist novel, War, attracted almost as much attention as All Quiet on the Western Front. Since then its author, by birth a Saxon aristocrat, has served a long treason against the Nazi regime.

Now he is fighting with the Government forces outside Madrid. But, before he went south, he found time to write this bitter and terrible exposure of the thuggery of Hitlerism.

The Reichstag fire ... the Röhm massacre...the murder of Dollfuss . . . the meeting of the Führer and the Duce ... Schacht's discussions with the financiers-against that background of all-too-recent history the author stages the hopes and fears and finally the despair of a little group of men who joined the Nazis in a mood of revolutionary fervour. . . . One of them is flung into jail. "He tried to walk up and down. He took one step to the seats, turned round, and one step to the wall. No, that wouldn't do. He must walk in a square, always taking one step and then turning left, half a step and then lest again.

"One step. Turn left. One step. Turn left. "But that would quickly make him giddy. He must go the other way round for a change. . . . Without exception, the scenes in prison, labour camps, concentration camps and asylums touch nightmars levels of horror and degradation. Man's inhumanity to man! Herr Renn can tell you about that—if you can bear to

"Wee Free" Dictators

VERY HEAVEN

By Richard Aldington (Heinemann, 7s. 6d.)

R. ALDINGTON has many of the qualities of a major modern novelist - pace, a sense of excitement, a fine, stinging indignation, a social conscience and an enviable capacity for narrative. But his indignation is getting out of hand. And that will never do.

His latest-and surely his unhappiest-hero is a symptom. Christopher Heylin's career at the university is cut short by a mysterious collapse in the family fortunes. His father takes to his bed and whisky. His sister is married off to a wealthy scoundrel, Disaster

ter in the book. He is within reach of personal happiness with Martha, a girl who seems to have listened with inexhaustlble patience while he talked page after page of irritating near-highfalutin about sex and society, when disaster strikes his sister and his home. The story ends with Christopher contemplating suicide, thinking better of it and lapsing into near-highfulutin again. . . . "I do not acknowledge despair. . : We ourselves are mortal and perishable, but the germ-plasm of our race is immortal. . . . I disown all formal codes, creeds and temporary fanaticisms and trust myself to the living impulse. . . . I have dealt with my past. I have acknowledged my littleness. I have humbled myself before the greatness of life. . . . I shall try once more." After which, you may be sure, he came back to London and that mild Juno, Martha, and moralised and quivered to his and her heart's con-A disappointing—and highly annoying-young man, Christopher. He doesn't connect sufficiently with the reality—the tragic reality—of his own world. His frustration is not made significant. He never meets anyone who can answer him back.

Tiero was a first-rate theme in Mr. Aldington's mind - youth, magnificently unprepared, at odds with a wily. wicked world. And don't imagine that Very Heaven is not well above the fun of the mill. But its author loses his temper too much and too often. And so this is the novel of the week; when it might have been the novel of

THE STAFF AT SIMSON'S

By Frederick Niven (Collins; 7s. 6d.)

FTER the spate of novels about a number of people L A fortuitously gathered together, how pleasant it is to come on such a tale as this, where the centre is not a hotel or a bus or a liner but a place of business-in which the binding link is work's routine. You may be bored or unhappy in your particular job, and you will certainly have your likes and dislikes among your colleagues. But you can get to know a good deal about men and women through working side by side with them many hours a day most weeks of the year.

In short, your firm or workshop or factory or government department assumes a definite shape and place in your thoughts.

Mr. Niven, who is one of Nature's story-tellers, an honest and capable craftsman of letters, has selzed this fact and exploited it to the full in this novel of the comings and goings, the fortunes and the idlosyncrasies, the odd and the lovable qualities of the various folk employed by a firm of softgoods manufacturers in Glasgow at the turn of the century.

They are all there-from directors to office boys, with their quips and cranks. their bustle about selling shirtings or balancing the petty cash account, while wars and inventions and disasters crash and rumble on the circumference of their attention.

In a sense this is a family album, portraying an aspect of life that is rapidly vanishing as works grow larger, outside interests more diverse and the thunder-murmur of world events more menacing.

Pause, then, and enjoy a simple tale of simple people, quietly and admirably told with the art that conceals art, full of kindliness and understanding.

FOUR HUNDRED MILLION CUSTOMERS

By Carl Crow _ (Hamish Hamilton, 10s. 6d.)

ONTRARY to romantic western expectations, the Chinese are a very particular people. "Anything will do for them, provided it's cheap enough " won't do for them at all: Mr. Crow says so.

And he knows. For the last twenty-five years he has carried on an advertising and merchandising agency there. And this is the fascinating and revealing record of his experiences in the land of rice, sharks' fins, melon seeds, buffaloes, bandits and coolles. Mr. Crow doesn't forget the coolles. Take the Queer Case of the Needles. Approximately 2,000 million needles are sold in China every year. "Each customer knows what size she wants, and she is not interested in any other kind. . . . To offer her a packet of twelve assorted sizes was like offering her a dozen pairs of shoes of assorted sizes. As only one pair would fit her, she wouldn't be interested in the other cloven." -You may learn in these pages how the Shanghai girls used to bring blushes to their checks with small hotwater bottles, why there would be no more white-bristled tooth-brushes if the pigs of Southern China were killed in an epidemic, how faces can be saved and lost and what "an apple a day means to a Chinaman. Yes, the real China is in this book. Dr. Pu Manchu will be surprised:

writes about Socialism and says that writes about Socialism and says that way to Hell."

Wyb are accustomed, in the South, to many tales of the esteem in which the kirk, pointing towards the new one, minister is still wondering what he really meant by that remark.

in his new charge, and after the services he took occasion to remark upon the smallness of the collections.

"Aye," replied one of the olders, 'some o' our folk are gie stingy. But, man, the auld minister had a way of pitten three or four shillin's in the plate himsel', just to gle them a start. Of course, he took the shillin's awa' wl' him after."

The minister thought he would try this plan on the following Sunday, but the experiment was worse than a failure. Not only was the collection small, but his decoy shillings were missing. "Aweel," said-the elder, on being acquainted with this, fact, "ye are maybe a better preacher than the auld man, but gin ye had half the knowledge o' the world, an' o' yer ain folk in particular, ye'd hac followed his example and glued the shillin's tae Caught in a thunder shower on the way to church the minister was dripping wet. In an unheated vestry he tried to dry off a little before going into the pulpit, and thus the beadle found him. "I am hardly a fit object to stand before the people, am 12" he inquired. "Oh, I'd go right in," replied the beadle, with a pawky smile, "ye're maybe wet enough the noo, but I daursay you'll be dry enough in the

"Sandy," said the little minister to his beadle one Sunday morning, "did you no' hear me crying to you when you went into the 'Golfers' Arms' yesterday?" "Fine that, minister," reprice o' yin drink I jist didna let on."

The minister had been lying in wait for the milkman, and when the latter came along told him he wanted to see him with regard to the quality of the milk he had been leaving at the manne of late, and would be kindly remember that in the manse milk was not used for christenings, but for purely dietetic purposes?,

The minister who did not always practise what he preached and sometimes interfered in household matters, was being enstigated by his housekeeper, who wound up her tirade with, "Ay, ye're a graun' preacher, ye're a graun' man in the pulpit, and if ye'd only consent the bide there I'd bring yo n' year menis."

On the first Sunday after his return from his honeymoon the minister gave out the hymn, "How wretched was our former state," and preached from the text, "I, John, am your fellow-aufferer in affliction." But this was, if anything, surpassed by the Irish cleric who, in similar circumstances, is reported to have taken as his text, "I am the pian that hath seen affliction," and in the evening preached on the words, "Oh that I had the wings of a dove, then would I fly away and be at rest."

It was prayer meeting night, and the new minister had asked Tammas to lead in prayer. It was Tammas's first experience, and he wandered. Ten minutes passed and he was still praying. The people were becoming restleas. Finally the minister interposed a strong "Amen." Tammas looked up and exclaimed .- "Thanks, _ meenister. that's the word I've been lookin' for ever since I started."

I wonder if there are many ministers like the one of whom I heard the other day? One of his parishioners said he was so good he would not even perform' a marriage ceremony. On being naked what that had to do with being good, he replied, "He says his conscience won't allow him to take part in any games of chance."

A country minister was boasting, as some of them do on occasion, about his education, making much of the fact that he held a degree from both Edinburgh and London Universities.

"You remind me," said another minister, "of a calf owned by a neighbour of mine, which was suckled by two cows." "Oh, and what was the consequence?" asked a listener. "The consequence," replied the other, "was that he was a very great calf indeed."

In the course of a rather windy sermon the minister had a good deal to say about lariness, and, pointing through the church window towards the local hospital, exclaimed, "If I thought I had a laxy bone in my body I would go over there and get them to cut it out."

His opinion of his own diligence was evidently not shared by his hearers for one of them turned to another and said, "If he did go there he'd come out

WHY BRITAIN DRINKS SO

Questions Expert 587 Housewives

There are two opposing schools of thought on the subject of Britain's low milk consumption.

The one ascribes it chiefly to the high cost of milk and advocates cheaper milk or higher incomes, or both. The other says that the most important obstacles are indifference, prejudice, ignorance and fear of disease.

His survey is based upon door-to-door visits to 587 households in Oxford, taken at random.

What evidence there is, he states, suggests that farmers would receive less gross income by cheapening mille, and that although mille in 41 per cent, higher than in the pre-war years, consumption has fallen by only five to ten per cent.

Householders each spending five to six shillings per head per week differed in their weekly milk pur-chases per head as much as from less than three and a half pints to more than seven pints; those spending seven to eight shillings per head varied from less than one pint to more than 10½ pints per head.

Talk Of Sabotage Laboratories

QUESTION whether there had been criminal interference in the laboratories, where anti-diphtheria serum was prepared, was asked at an inquest at Ring (County Waterford) recently:

The inquest was on Siobhain Kenneally, a 12-year -old student of the Irish College, Ring, who died after inoculation against diphtheria.

The girl's father put the question to Dr. Warwick Bigger, professor of bacteriology, who replied that he had heard a suggestion of sabotage, but it would be impossible for a stranger to do it.

H.M.S. Repulse Sent To Haifa to Watch Trend of Events

London, July 5.

Because of the fear of disturbances in connection with the publication of the report of the Palestine Commission, the giant battle-cruiser Repulse has steamed for Haifa from Malta.—Reuter.

ARABS ARE MOBILISING

Jerusalem, July 5. Great Britain has rushed the battle-cruiser, H.M.S. Repulse, plus a fleet of fighting planes, to Haifa. This is the result of growing threats of possible bloodshed following the forthcoming British Royal Commission report.

The Commission, under the chairmanship of Lord Peel, is expected to bring down the report this week, establishing the division of Palestine into three parts, a Zionist state, an Arab state and a neutral corridor, giving the Arabs access to the sea, under British mandate.

Takes On Fighting Planes H.M.S. Repulse left Malta and touched at Kalafrana shortly afterwards, where, it is reported, she took on a fleet of fighting planes. She then left for Haifa,

D. W. Wagstaff Makes Own Way Back

Mr. Donald William Wagstaff, Hongkong yachtsman, who failed to return to Hongkong waters last night after a week-end cruise alone in his small sailboat, Y-4, is safe. He arrived off Shaukiwan this morning, according to meagre information disclosed by the Water Police. The Water Police would add nothing to the report that, "Mr. Wagstaff has been found." According to information obtained by the Telegraph earlier in the day, Y-4 was sighted in Silver Strand Bay on Saturday night. Nothing was seen or heard of her and her intrepld skipper until shortly after noon today when Mr. Wagstaff apparently sailed into Shaukiwan, and took a launch from there bound for Kowloon, and home. Mr. Wagstaff's wife and two children are in Hongkong, and were naturally somewhat apprehensive when he did not return from his cruise last night. However, he known as a capable sailor and friends were convinced that he would find shelter for his yacht no matter what weather he encountered.

· ABOARD ALL NIGHT

First indications that Mr. Wagstaff was safe were given to the Telegraph early this afternoon by Mr. J. L. Anderson, another keen yatchsman, who saw, and spoke to Mr. Wagstaff yesterday afternoon, while he was out with his yacht."

Mr. Wagstaff then sald he intended to put into Hebe Haven as the wind was freshening. It was his intention, he added, to remain on board all night, and resume his trip back to Hongkong this morning,

Globe-Circling Plane Believed Fast on Reef

(Special to "Telegraph")

San Francisco, July 4. Mr. G. P. Putnam, husband of the missing airwoman, revealed to-day that an amateur operator at Rock Springs, Wyoming, at 8 a.m. to-day on 16,000 kilocycles, heard a feeble message which is taken to have come from Mrs. Putnam's aircraft, saying it is wrecked on a reef south of the Equator. There were no further details.

A spokesman for the organised search said: "It is most encouraging that all reports, of messages from Amelia seem to tie together."

Meanwhile, the Pan-American Airways' Honolulu station has sent the following message to Mrs. Putnam: "If you hear this answer with 'dashes." The station reports it heard a response at 7.15 n.m. However, the signals were so weak that the direction-finders could not locate them. It is estimated, nevertheless, that the signals came from the south-east of Howland Island, and the 'Coast Guard cutter Itasca has shifted her search and is at present proceeding south-west to the south-east of Howland Island .-- United Press.

On Forced Draught

San Diego, July 4. Preceded by four destroyers, the aircraft carrier Lexington sailed today, under forced draught, for Hawaii and Howland Island to join the search for Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam.-United Press.

fashion hunt I have seen many interesting clothes. Angrave has drawn some of them here.

The centre model in the picture shows an all-suede dress in a soft shade of powder blue, most beautifully cut, and fastened at the neck with zips. The knee length coat in this Madame Zenia design is in raspberry red suede with a V-shaped yoke and hanging straight in front.

Another model is a lovely shade powder blue. The 'silk crepe coat has beige fox placed over the

Washing Tips

TRILLS and delicate laces are popular this season, but many dainty jabots and lace collars lose their charm, unless they are washed with the utmost care.

A good plan for prolonging the life of lace collars and cuffs, for example, is to place them in a glass far containing lukewarm soap suds and shake the jar instead of gently squeezing the articles which is the usual' procedure when washing

The secret of making any clothes wear well is to rinse them thoroughly every time they are washed. In the case of shirt or blouse cuffs which collect dust from desks or tables, it is always wiser to press the suds through from the clean side to the dirty rather than heap soap suds on to the dirty side and rub furlously in the hope that the dirt the more. Bellshaped coats are fashion's latest whim and are smartest in bright blue and green quilted linen.

Russe Charlotte

WE may be doing a little extra entertaining these days, and a Charlotte Rousse would be just the thing for a supper party: really quite simple to make and certainly very swell-looking! The simplest one is made by lining a mould with cake and filling the centre with a cream mixture, sponge fingers in halves being most com-

If you haven't got a proper Charlotte mould, then any plain round mould will do, even a small cake-tin or a pudding-basin, so long as it does not slant too much in the sides. Anyway, whichever you use, put a circle of oiled paper in the bottom, and arrange the fingers neatly and evenly round the sides, close together without overlapping. If you would rather use slices of cake, then cut them in thin strips, about an inch or an inch and a half wide, and fit them closely together. -You -can -uso alternate strips of different coloured cakes, for instance, madeira or sponge and chocolate, or you can ice the strips in different colours, but in that case you must see that the icing is nice and hard before the mould is lined, and the sides as well as the bottom should be lined first with paper. If you want ! to put a piece of cake on the top of will vanish. "Gained Weight -Sleep Well-And Am Full of Vigour"?

> Are you off-colour-feeling the heat-listless and devoid of energy—a victim of nerves and sleeplessness? Then read how a Conadian girl who suffered in this way recovered health and strength.

"I felt tired, run-down and without any pep", writes Miss Jean Kerr, of Brantford, Ontario. "My mother suggested that I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I took her advice. . I have gained weight, sleep well at night and am full of pepthanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am always glad to recommend this remedy to anyone who feels as I did."

By enriching the blood with oxygen and iron nutriment these pills supply just what is needed to invigorate the system, Soon after taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills most people experience a lift in energy, appetite improves, sleep is sounder and more restful, nerves are strengthened.

Many under-nourished, thin women, have been delighted to find their hitherto bony, angular figures filled out into graceful curves after a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The iron in the pills also helps to impart more colour to the skin and improves the complexion.

For over fifty years Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved an invigorating tonic of the most reliable kind, and they are equally good for men, women and growing children; try them yourself and be convinced. Obtainable from chemists everywhere.

SUNSPOT CYCLE SPEED-UP

Nine-Year Period Instead of Eleven AIR ALMANAC FOR

MINISTRY London, June 7. The sun is likely to reach the most active stage of the 11-years sunspot cycle in the nutumn. This was stated at the annual visitation of Greenwich Observatory on Saturday. It means that shortwave wireless reception will then be at its best, so that the B.B.C.'s new Empire transmitters will be coming into full operation under the most favourable conditions.

It is also believed that there are more thunderstorms over the world than at any other stage in the sun's cycle. The level of Lake Victoria Nyanza will also be expected to be at its highest. This, too, follows the sunspot cycle, presumably because the rainfall of tropical Africa is affected.

If the astronomers' expectations are fulfilled, this will have been one of the shortest cycles on record. The last year of sunspot maximum was 1928, giving an interval of only nine years instead of 11. However, since the sun is always erratic, individual cycles occupying anything between nine and 13 years, it cannot be particularly blamed on the present occasion. The average is 11.4 years. Sunspots are great vortices on the sun's disc, often large enough to swallow up the earth many times over. Two of the largest spots seen this year each covered more than 2,000 million square miles.
SPOTS BELOW STANDARD

At the present time, there is one group of five spots on the west side of the sun, and on the east side a smaller group of three spots, and also a solitary spot. None of these is, however, up to the best standard that the sun can produce...

This is the first year, that the Astronomer Royal's report has covered the work of the Nautical Almanac, as well as that of the Royal Observatory. A departure has been the beginning of a special air almanae for the Air Ministry to meet the special needs of navigation of long distance flights.

LOCAL ART EXHIBITION Work Of Late Mr. Hong Chen

The memorial exhibition of watercolour drawings by the late Mr. Hong Chen, now being held under the nuspices of the Hongkong Working Artists' Guild at the Chinese Y.M.C.A., 3Be Bonham Road (Route No. 3 Bus) is really one that should not be missed by art lovers in view of the fact that the show comprises the most interesting periods of the artist's development, and, with the exception of one or two earlier oils, the rest represent the development of his new and very individual art.

Prima facie, the development, or material used and his environment. After his return from Parls where he was trained, Mr. Hong Chen was interested in the spirit of Chinese ar and its method, and the paper he used was of an absorbent nature. By "San Francisco" (Oriental Theatre, continuous experiment of the methods to-day) .- Realistic and impressive of the East and West, he had evolved picturisation of the early history of and developed a style all his own; The famous Paellie coast city. High while at the same time his environ-Bringing Cargo from Dunkirk via spot of the film is the reproduction of ment of the simple life of the people of Kwangsi Province had caused him to work in a simple and direct manner, with the result that he had created a new vista in which his somewhat imaginary vision of nature -and not nature itself-predomnat-

> In 'the artist's early period, his figures look rather "alry" in treatment. In his later period, however, he rendered his subject more lively and more solld and in these he has reached the top of his achievement. Of the "Mother and Child" studies perhaps No. 34 is most pleasing. "The Artist's Son" (No. 39) has a delicate touch and a lovely colour scheme, the paper playing so well in rendering the right prevailing tone of the flesh. No. 4, "Arrived." is suggestive, rather than representative, of the arrival of a donkey-cart. No. 20, depicting a cow with a boy on her back crossing the river, is a convincing study of a cow in the river. In No. 5, "Vegetable Market," sunlight is rendered in a most economical

There is sunlight too in the rendering of foliage in No. 51; while in No. 44, "Village Scene in Annam", such sunlight is really "hot" in that cocoanut tree is painted in a warmer key. As regards landscapes, the treat- 28171

ment varies from a strong and full colour limpid wash such as Nos. 41 and 72 to a pale and economical rendering such as his bridge studies. No. 19 is characteristic of Chinese traditional art. There is a sense of wetness in No. 54, "Landscape in Kweilin", such treatment being characteristic of the acquerrel medium. p.m., Rowloon Wharf. 26061. No. 59 has an interesting variety, and hence contrast of, texture. No. 14 is a very delicate study of trees.

In coming to the animal section, one marvels at the variety of treatment which is so completely adapted to each subject. One need only compure the study of a bear (No. 26) with his tiger studies; the former looks heavier and at the same time less active, hence a slower and heavier-treatment,-while,-the-latter being a more active creature, has a light and rapid touch. In Nos. 23 and 24 (cow and cat studies respectively) we find that the artist relentless searched for his form and satisfactory modelling.

In conclusion, I would stress the point that most of the exhibits are father delicate sketches, so that they would look pale to one who demands work of a more colourful nature. To those who love delicate, and at the same time no less vital, work and are patient enough (and why not?) in marvelling at a work of art, this show will offer a tonic that will not be easily forgotten, as none of the exhibits impart a feeling of duliness or labour, but rather that the work done were full of inspiration and joy. MR. N. L. SMITH'S REPLY

In his reply His Excellency said I feel it a great honour to have been asked to propose the health to-day, and before doing so I should like to express our gratitude for the delightful hospitality offered by our American friends.

remark made by one of the wisest of living Americans to the effect that the only danger to Anglo-American relationships was when one side or the other set out to try to improve them. That I think was a very sage remark. When a car is ticking over comfortably on all cylinders: there is really not much point in getting out the crank handle and trying to give it a helping hand. In fact this is liable to end in a broken wrist. So the less I say about Boston tea partles and democratic ideals this time, and if so why not just let It tick over?

PROMISSORY NOTE CLAIM

SOUTH SEA LABOUR CONTRACT DISPUTE

Sitting for the first time as Acting Chief Justice in the Supreme Court this morning, Mr. Justice C. G. Alabaster was congratulated by Mr. George She, on behalf of the members of the Bar.

Mr. She said he felt sure every member of the Bar'was glad of His ·Lordship's appointment,

His Lordship expressed his appreclation and said that although he was sitting for the first time he was not among strangers.

This happened prior to the hearing of an action brought by Chan Waiyee, of 70 Connaught Road Central, against Pun Tsz-piu, of I Lee Kwan Road, cialming the return of $7,500 promissory notes dated August 19,

D'Almada Remedios, appeared for stable arrested him. pinintiff, and defendant was represented by Mr. H. Somerset Fitzroy. on the instructions of Mr. M. A. da Outlining the facts, Mr., She 'said that in 1922 his client became col 1prudore of the Hongkong branch of Castro on the second charge. the Deli Planters' Association, in which defendant worked as chief clerk and interpreter. It was plaintiff's business to hire Chinese labourers for the South Sea Islands, and for every man he engaged he was paid the sum of $13.50. In addition he was given 60 cents for the board and lodging of each labourer during their stay in the Colony, pending transportation. A year later this allowance was increased to 80 cents.

Plaintiff could not speak English or Dutch and he had to-rely on defendant as a go-between for him and the Company. In order to secure his good services, plaintiff gave defendant $2 out of $13.50 given to him for each labourer he hired. Although it was mentioned in the affidavit that defendant was also given part of the board and lodging allowance this was not true as plaintiff had never agreed to do so either in writing or other-

$10,000 BORROWED

On August 18, 1933, continued Mr. She, defendant borrowed $10,000 from plaintiff under two promissory notes. Defendant undertook to return the money within five months, but two or three days after the expiration of that period, he repaid only $2,000. On November 30, 1934, he returned another $500. Since then, despite repeated requests, defendant put off plaintiff by one excuse after another, and on November 9, 1935, the writ was issued.

Evidence corroborating 'Counsel's statement was given by plaintiff, who added that the sum of $13.50 given to him for each labourer hired had to be divided among eight or nine persons in various places such as Swatow and Sanmel, including $2 to defendant. The board and lodging allowance was not divided, at all. Between 100 and 400 labourers were bired every month, and defendant was paid after each trip. The loan to defendant was witnessed by his (plaintiff's) son.

Cross-examined by Mr. Fitzroy. plaintiff said that although he and defendant came from the same district of Chiuchow they did not meet until they were in Hongkong in 1922. He was introduced to defendant by one Chu Ting-shuen, and a discussion took place as to the employment of someone to hire labourers on behalf of the Association. At defendant's suggestion, he agreed to do so, and n security of $10,000 was put up. part of which was advanced to him by defendant. As a result of this out of the $13.50.

INSURGENTS Kowloon Lady Assaulted

Thrown To Ground By Hawker

"This kind of trade is not to be encouraged. It is doing shops out of business. The people who deal with them are themselves reprehensiol? Maybe you had a legitimate excuse for a grievance in being asked to wait two weeks for your money. Any business man might be annoyed, but that does not justify your behaviour." So remarked Mr. K. M. A. Barnett at the Kowloon Magistracy in convicting Wong Chun-ching, 19, unlicensed hawker, of assault on Mrs. E. M. Castro, at No. 11 Knutsford Terrace on July 4 and with doing malicious damage to the front door. Defendant pleaded not guilty.

 Complainant in evidence said that at 8.30 a.m. on July 4 defendant went to the house asking for money for The Foreign Office officially con- two pillow cases which witness firmy that the Insurgent cruiser, 'sister, Mrs. Hodge, had bought off Almirante Cervera, stopped the him on June 15 for $1.80 and had French merchantman, Tregastel, off signed an LO.U., He had been previously, on Saturday, but Mrs. Hodge being out he had been asked to come back again. On Sunday he banged on the door and was told to wait. In view of his behaviour the pillow cases were returned to him, but he would not cancel the LO.U. Mr. Castro gave defendant a punch in the eye. Meanwhile a police constable had been called and defendant was arrested.

Defendant said that in trying to push him out, witness had broken the window of the door.

Mr. Castro corroborated complainant's evidence. Defendant said that it was because he was making a moise that witness struck him. "I would not dare to assault you, beicause you are a foreigner and bigger

The case for the prosecution was further corroborated by the evidence of Mrs. Hodge and P.C.B. 643.

Ten Killed At Gipsies' Coronation

Ethiopia May Become .Home Of Race

Warsaw, July 4. Ten persons were killed and 20 injured after the crowning of Janusz Kwick, itinerant tinker, as King of the Gipsies, before a crowd of 5,000 Gipsy delegates.

There is no explanation of the fighting which broke out after the "coronation."

Kwick is shortly to visit Rome to interview Signor Benito' Mussolini respecting the Italian Dictator's reported offer to provide a national home for the Gipsies in Ethiopia, Italy's recently acquired African colony, still disturbed by sporadic fighting in the more inaccessible regions where troops are hunting out 5, at 10 a.m., and that they will thererebellious tribesmen.

FEW NOTES ABOUTBRYANGRANT

Realising His Ambitions

By Jack Cuddy

United Press Staff Correspondent New York.

Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, the Atlantan diminutivo triumphed over persistent disappointments and his own fiery temper, is in England as the No. 2 singles player of the U.S. Davis Cup team.

A lot of young Americans have | sailed for Europe during the past decade in futile, quest of this Holy Grait of tennis, but it is doubtful, If any one ever appreclated the opportunity more than this sawed-off Georgian. He has tried so long to be a full-fledged Davis cupper, and this voyage may give him the chance | to prove to our tennis officials what they have been missing all these . years in snubbing him.

At 26, Bitsy has achieved one of lils three life-time ambitions-to win a regular berth on the cup team. The other two ambitions are; (1) to win the Wimbledon singles championship, and (2) to win the U.S. singles title.

HE TRIED AGAIN

The small southerner figured he leserved a place on the team in 1935 after wading -through Ellsworth Vines, Sidney Wood and John Van Ryn. But the Cup Committee passed him up. Though somewhat disheartened, he tried again last year. He was picked on the team for the matches against Mexico, but before the American Zone Inal with Australia he was dropped in favour of Wilmer Allison. Allison lost both his singles matches to the Aussies. Then Bitsy did the sporting thing. He told reporters, "Gosh! I don't think I could have done any better."

This year Bitsy went after that cup job in dead earnest. He whipped himself into peak form. And all the tennis writers, claim he is playing better tian ever before. He was brilliant in beating both Jack Crawford and John Bromwich of Australia in the recent North American final. He bent both in straight sets, while our No. 1 singles player, Donald Budge, required four to dispose of Bromwich.

Although Grant is only 26, he is the oldest man on the U.S. squad which placed a definite accent on youth. He was born on Christmas Day, 1910. He has been a big-time tennis performer ever since he was a kid in knoo pants. At 16, he captured the Southern championship, and for years he proved invincible on clay. He scrambles about the court like a squirrel-specializing in speed afoot and retrieving. He goes after seemingly impossible returns and often bumbles about the court

when he misses them. LIKES SOFT-BALL GAME

He prefers the soft-ball game instead of trying to knock the cover off the peliet.

"I find that you usually can win the point if you get the ball back more often than the other fellow, he explains. So he keeps getting the ball back-to the despair of opponents.

Bitsy's temper has been a far greater handicap to his progress than his size. Too often he hurled his racquet across the court in a fit of anger and fired the air with lurid language. However, studying the game under Mercer Beasiey taught him to control his temper as well as giving him many valuable pointers in technique.

JOAN INGRAM, MARGOT LUMB Wiss Round Absent "KAY" AS

Two newcomers to Wightman Cup tennis are included in this year's British team to oppose the Americans at Forest Hills on August 20 and 21 according to an announcement made last Saturday.

Miss Joan Ingram, who performed so well in the women's doubles at Wimbledon and Miss Margot Lumb, British squash rackets champion, and the most improved English woman tennis player of the year, are the two to receive Wightman cup .honours for the first time.

Britain's chances of winning the cup are reduced by Miss Round's inability to make the trip. Miss Kay Stammers therefore becomes Britain's No. 1 singles player. Though Miss Stammers has a fine Wightman Cup record including speciacular victories over Miss Helen Jacobs, she has shown inconsistent form in the competition and has invariably lost her second singles match, thereby nullifying previous triumphs.

Miss Mary Hardwicke or Miss Margot Lumb will probably play second string singles. Miss Evelyn Dearman, Miss Freda James, and Miss Joan Ingram will almost certainly figure in the doubles matches,

EIGHT AMATEURS IN THE LIST

Counties Lack Vitality

In county cricket to-day the art of fielding seems to be practised with a certain lack of vitality. It is competent, but competence is not enough. Some of our more promising batsmen appear to think that batting is sufficient so long as they make no glaring errors in the field. But no crocketer is complete unless his fielding is enger and dynamic.

This is not the fault of county captains, who on the whole set a very good example. If we make a list of the dozen best fielders in England, we can scarcely fail to include several of these captains themselves. Here is a sample list:

I FOUND NO PEACE By Webb Miller.

(Gollancz, 12s. ad.)

O see our European selves as American others see us is these days no doubt good for our souls if bad for our vanity.

Webb Miller, latest of American newspaper men to give us his impressions, came over first in 1917 to " "war-time" London, grim; dreary and depressing. He has been "this side" on and off ever since-shy, . shrewd, quietly observant, humorously commenting,

Because Webb is Webb, his story is not." like some I could mention," a boost of Mr. Miller the correspondent. It is just a quiet record of a busy fournalist's life among the world happenings of twenty years.

Those twenty years took him from the Western Front to Ireland in the "trouble," to the Riff, to India in the days of lathi-charges, to a dozen Conferences, to the Italian front in Abyssinia, last to Spain. They put him in contact with most of the "great men" of.

our day. At times he found humour: but he found no peace. That it is on the whole a depressing tale is no fault of the writer. It is the fault of the mismanagers of affairs.

There was a little exhausted mongrel dog near shell-tortured Verdun-"the only incident during the war that brought tears to my eyes." " Perhaps this tired, bewildered little Hog symbolised to me all these men. He didn't know what it was all about, where he was going or what would happen to him either." That is pretty true of all Europe

ever since. It is well these days to be reminded of many things the elders try to forget and the younger do not remember. Of those hills round Verdun for example, where nearly a million French and German bodies lie - most of them never identified, thousands of them never even found.

But there are lighter stories, too. Lloyd George, for example, explaining his fitness under intolerable strain. Sleeping at will-and singing Welsh hymns.

"Whenever I found that I was becoming troubled by my responsibilities I ceased work and sang hymns for a few minutes. Bometimes I've kept important callers or delegations waiting

while I sang. Out of it all Webb Miller has come with the double conviction that should come to all of us who mix in "world affairs" and try to record them; that, try as honestly as one may, it is desperately hard to tell the truth: that the more one knows, the less one knows one knows.

"I have learned that the only way to retain a firm clear-cut opinion about anything is to know little or nothing about It.",

When a man talks like that you can be sure that his opinions are worth ·heeding.

And anyway, in the case of Webb Miller, you can take it from me that his book is much more than merely worth reading. W. N. E.

THE ROAD TO

WIGAN PIER By George Orwell

. (Gollancz, 10s. 6d.)

HIS is obviously intended to be a bold and a challenging book. It succeeds until the anti-climaxes begin two-thirds of the way through. Then you wonder what has happened to the boldness and the challenge-and you, never really find out.

Mr. Orwell has quite properly been hailed as a " realistic " writer. He can make you shudder about the disgusting conditions of a lodging-house over a tripe-shop and make you rebellious about the dreadful conditions in which many miners toll.

He can work you up into a state of great indignation about the folly of class consciousness, to which he devotes many pages. About that he can get you quite hot under the collar-and does. Until you get to page 203, which is the last but one. And then he says: "As for the terribly difficult issue of class-distinctions, the only possible policy for the moment is to go easy and not frighten more people than can be helped."

That is one anti-climax after thousands of violent words which purport to writes about Socialism and says that way to Hell."

We are accustomed, in the South, to many tales of the esteem in which the and saying "That way to Hell."

Its idea is less widely accepted than it way to the "Recall to Church is held. It is related that on one occasion even Queen Victoria met Another religious "scane" in which the and saying "That way to Hell."

hear of the power wielded by the Free her match. He gets the impression sometimes that the mere words " Bocialism" and Church. Yet the case of Malcolm "Communism" draw towards, them with magnetic force "every fruit-juice drinker, nudist, sandal-wearer, sexmaniac, Quaker, 'Nature Cure' quack, pacifist and feminist in England." After which he asserts that the underlying ideal of Bocialism, "and the only thing for which we can combine," is "justice and liberty."

Which Socialists were saying when Mr. Orwell was a baby, and have been trying to bring about ever since. Realism is Mr. Orwell's job. In the first part of his book he succeeds in mercileasly describing some aspects of the human problem ... But he does not help to put things right. Which scems to mean that, for him,

DEATH WITHOUT BATTLE

By Ludwig Renn (Martin Secker and Warburg, 6s.)

OME years ago Herr Renn's pacifist novel, War, attracted almost as much attention as All Quiet on the Western Front. Since then its author, by birth a Saxon aristocrat, has served a long term of imprisonment for high treason against the Nazi regime.

Now he is fighting with the Government forces outside Madrid. But, before he went south, he found time to write this bitter and terrible exposure of the thuggery of Hitlerism.

The Reichstag fire Ja. the Röhm massacre...the murder of Dollfuss the meeting of the Führer and the Duce . . . Schacht's discussions with the financiers-against that background of all-too-recent history the author stages the hopes and fears and finally the despair of a little group of men who joined the Nazis in a mood of revolutionary fervour. ... One of them is flung into jail. "He tried to walk up and down. He took one step to the seats, turned round. and one step to the wall. No, that wouldn't do. He must walk in a square, always taking one step and then turning left, half a step and then left again.

"One step. Turn left, One step... Turn loft. "But that would quickly make him giddy. He must go the other way round for a change. . . . "

Without exception, the scenes in prison, labour camps, concentration camps and naylums touch nightmare lovels of horror and degradation. Man's inhumanity to man! Herr Renn can tell you about that—if you can bear to

His latest—and surely his unhapplest-hero is a symptom. Christopher Heylin's career at the university is cut short by a mysterious collapse in the family fortunes. His father takes to his bed and whisky. His sister is married off to a wealthy scoundrel. Disaster

Meanwhile Christopher, who has apparently read more D. H. Lawrence than is good for him, quivers sensitively in and out of a love-affair and slaves away unhappily at the only work he can find-the cataloguing of the "art collection" of that nesthetic archhumbug, Mr. Ripplesmere, who is, incidentally, the most successful character in the book.

He is within reach of personal happiness with Martha, a girl who seems to have listened with inexhaustible patience while he talked page after page of irritating near-highfulutin about sex and society, when disaster_ strikes his sister and his home. The story ends with Christopher contemplating suicide, thinking better of it and lapsing into near-highfulutin

"I do not acknowledge despair. We ourselves are mortal and perishable, but the germ-plasm of our race is immortal. . . I disown all formal codes, creeds and temporary, fanaticisms and trust myself to the living impulse. . .. I have dealt with my past. I have acknowledged my littleness. I have humbled myself before the greatness of life. ... I shall try once more."

After which, you may be sure, he came back to London and that mild Juno, Martha, and moralised and quivered to his and her heart's con-

A disappointing—and highly annoying-young man, Christopher. He doesn't connect sufficiently with the reality—the tragic reality—of his own world. His frustration is not made significant. He never meets anyone who can answer him back.

There was a first-rate theme in Mr. Aldington's mind - youth, magnificently unprepared, at odds with a wily, wicked world. And don't imagine that Very Heaven is not well above the run of the mill. But its author loses his temper too much and too often. . And so this is the novel of the week, when it might have been the novel of the season.

THE STAFF AT SIMSON'S

By Frederick Niven (Collins, 7s. 6d.)

FTER the spate of novels - A nbout a number of people L M fortuitously gathered together, how pleasant it is to come on such a tale as this, where the centre is not a hotel or a bus or a liner but a place of business-in which the binding link is work's routine.

You may be bored or unhappy in your particular job, and you will certainly have your likes and dislikes among your colleagues. But you can get to know a good deal about men and women through working side by side with them many hours a day most weeks of the year.

In short, your firm or workshop or factory or government department assumes a definite shape and place in your thoughts.

Mr. Niven, who is one of Nature's story-tellers, an honest and capable craftsman of letters, has seized this fact and exploited it to the full in this novel of the comings and goings, the fortunes and the idiosyncrasies, the odd and the loyable qualities of the various folk employed by a firm of softgoods manufacturers in Glasgow at the turn of the century.

They are all there-from directors to office boys, with their quips and cranks, their bustle about selling shirtings or balancing the petty cash account, while wars and inventions and disasters crash and rumble on the circumference of their attention.

In a sense this is a family album. portraying an aspect of life that is rapidly vanishing as works grow larger, outside interests more diverse and the thunder-murmur of world events more menacing.

Pause, then, and enjoy a simple tale of simple people, quietly and admirably told with the art that conceals art, full of kindliness and understanding.

FOUR HUNDRED MILLION CUSTOMERS By Carl Crow

(Hamish Hamilton, 10s. 6d.)

ONTRARY to romantic western expectations, the Chinese are a very particular people. "Anything will do for them, provided it's cheap enough " won't do for them at all. Mr. Crow says so. And he knows.

For the last twenty-five years he has carried on an advertising and merchandising agency there. And this is the fascinating and revealing record of his experiences in the land of rice, sharks' fins, melon seeds, buffaloes, bandits and coolies. Mr. Crow doesn't forget the coolies.

Take the Queer Case of the Needles. Approximately 2,000 million needles are sold in Chica every year. "Each customer knows what size she wants, and she is not interested in any other kind. . . . To offer her a packet of twelve assorted sizes was like offering her a dozen pairs of shoes of assorted sizes. As only one pair would fit her, she wouldn't be interested in the other cloven.":

You may learn in these pages how the Shanghai girls used to bring blushes to their cheeks with small hotwater bottles, why there would be no more white-bristled tooth-brushes if the pigs of Southern China were killed in an epidemic, how faces can be saved and lost and what "an apple a day means to a Chinaman. Yes, the real China is in this book. Dr. Fu Manchu will be surprised.

CLERICAL YARNS Maistly Hame Spun

IT was the minister's second Sunday in his new charge, and after the services he took occasion to remark upon the smallness of the collections.

"Aye," replied one of the elders, "some o' our folk are gle stingy. But, man, the auld minister had a way o' pitten three or four shillin's in the plate himsel', just to gie them a start. Of course, he took the shillin's awa' wl' him after."

The minister thought he would try this plan on the following Sunday, but the experiment was worse than a fallure. Not only was the collection amall, but his decoy shillings were missing, "Aweel," said the elder, on being acquainted with this fact, "ye are maybe a better preacher than the nuld man, but gin ye had half the knowledge o' the world, 'an' o' yer ain folk in particular, ye'd has followed his example and glued the shillin's tac Caught in a thunder shower on the way to church the minister was dripping wet. In an unheated ventry he tried to dry off a little before going into the pulpit, and thus the beadle found him. "I am hardly a fit object to stand before the people, am 1?" he thquired. "Oh, I'd go right in," 'replied' the beadle, with a pawky smile, "ye're maybe wet enough the noo, but I daursny you'll be dry enough in the

"Sandy," said 'the little minister to his bendle one Sunday morning, "did you no' hear me crying to you when you went into the 'Golfers' Arms' yes. terday?" "Fine that, minister," re-torted Sandy, "but, as I had only the price o' yla drink I jist didan let on."

The minister had been lying in wait for the milkman, and when the latter came along told him he wanted to see him with regard to the quality of the milk he had been leaving at the manse of late, and would be kindly remember that in the manse milk was not used for christenings, but for purely dictetic purposes?

The minister who did not always practise what he preached and sometimes interfered in household matters, was being castigated by his house-keeper, who wound up her tirade with, "Ay, yo're a graun' preacher, ye're a graun' man in the pulpit, and if ye'd only consent the bide there I'd bring ye a' year meals."

On the first Sunday after his return from his honeymoon the minister gave out the hymn, "How wretched was our former sinte," and preached from the text, "I, John, am your fellow-sufferer in adliction." But this was, if anything, surpassed by the Irish cloric who, in similar circumstances, is reported to have taken as his text, "I am the man that hath seen affiction," and in the evening preached on the words, "Oh that I had the wings of a dove then would I fly away and be at rest."

It was prayer meeting night, and the I new minister thad asked Tammas to lead in prayer. It was Tammas's first experience, and he wandered. Ten minutes passed and he was still praying. The people were becoming restless. Finally the minister interposed a strong "Amen." Tammas looked up and exclaimed, "Thanks, meenister, that's the word I've been lookin' for ever-since-I-started."

I wonder if there are many ministers like the one of whom I heard the other day? One of his parishioners said he was so good he would not even perform a marriage ceremony. On being asked what that had to do with being good, he replied, "Ite says his conscience won't allow him to take part in any games of chance."

A country minister was boasting, as some of them do on occasion, about his education, making much of the fact that he held a degree from both Edinburgh and London Universities.

"You remind me," said another ministor, "of a calf owned by a neighbour of mine, which was suckled by two cows." "Oh, and what was the consequence?" naked a listener. "The con-nequence," replied the other, "was that he was a very great calf indeed."

In the course of a rather windy sermon the minister had a good deal to say about lasiness, and, pointing through the church window towards the local hospital, exclaimed, "If I thought I had a lazy bone in my body I would go over there and get them to cut it out.".

His opinion of his own diligence was evidently not shared by his hearers for one of them turned to another and said, "If he did go there he'd come out

He had accepted a call to a big city charge, and was paying a forewell visit to one of his rural congregation. In the course of conversation the parishioner wondered if the minister was right in leaving, and thought he should think the matter over. "Maybe," said | 12 One of the carliest marines. church a signpost appeared at the old easily pleased as we are here." The minister is still wondering what he really meant by that remark. DE VALERA

NOT YET

From Independent Or Labour Group

Dublin, July 4.
The Irish Free State election, complete results of which will not likely be known before Wednesday, has reached a most interesting stage. The state of the parties at present is:

De Valera's Party, 56, Cosgrave's Party, 35. Labour, 11, Independents, 8.

There are still 28 results to come. Mr. Eamon de Valera at present has a majority of two over the combined Opposition parties. But he had confidently expected the election to enable him to form a Government without the necessity of making an alliance with any other party. He may just manage to achieve this but there is still some uncertainty.

Of the remaining seats 11 are for these he may still be obliged to depend for support upon Independents and Labour members, the latter in opposition to the draft constitution fearing it may jeopardise their right to main-

ARTIFICIAL BLOODINVENTED

 Vienna, June 10. SUBSTITUTE for human blood has just been invented which five men got adrift on two by Dr. Friedrich Gottendenker,

A Harley Street surgeon was among the doctor's callers to-day.

Milltary experts are taking great interest in the invention, for, in the Yesterday's typhoon conditions event of war, the "blood substitute" caused un appreciable drop in the will solve the problem of guarantee-

STERILE AND DURABLE The doctor said that he hoped the discovery would case suffering and save life in peace time as well as

This morning's weather report "After acute loss of blood," he said,

"Efforts have, therefore, been , made to substituate for human drainage of the heart.

"As a result of my experiments here I have been successful in producing a sterile, durable substitute."

MURDER CASE

Two of the four men arrested in connection with the murder of Mr. Chan Lai-tsun, alias David Chan Sze, former managing director of the Sincere Co., Ltd., again, appeared at the Kowloon Magistracy this moraing, before Mr. E. Hlmsworth.

The accused were Ko Wah-tak and Leung Wong, and both were charged with the capital offence. On the appliention of Detective Inspector Carey, they were remanded for one

Mr. Peter Sin, who appeared for Ko Wah-tak, asked permission for accused's mother to see him for a few minutes, and this was granted.
